"There is no Appeal beyond Cæsar!"

The late world-renowned Dermatologist,

Sir ERASMUS WILSON, F.R.S.,

The FIRST AND ONLY

President of the Royal College of Surgeons who ever gave a public Testimonial, and the following is

THE ONLY TESTIMONIAL HE EVER GAVE.

"If it be well to wash the skin—and we never heard the proposition questioned—it is well also that we should be familiar with the means by which that purpose may be most efficiently attained.

"We once knew a beautiful woman, with a nice complexion, who had never washed her face with soap all her life through; her means of polishing were, a smear of grease or cold cream; then a wipe, and then a lick with rose water. Of course we did not care to look too closely after such an avowal, but we pitied her, for soap is the food of the skin.—

Soap is to the skin what Wine is to the stomach, a generous stimulant. It not only removes the dirt, but the layer which carries the dirt; and it promotes the displacement of the old cuticle to make way for the new, to increase the activity of change in the skin. Now turn we to Toilet Soaps and there we find a name engraven on the memory of the oldest inhabitant—PEARS.

PEARS' SOAP! an article of the nicest and most careful manufacture, and the most refreshing and agreeable of balms to the skin."

ORLEANS ASSASSINATED.

Shot Down at His Own Doorstep—Cuban Planters Want Reciprocity with the United States—Edison Preparing an Air Ship—Bradstreets Report.

KEOKUK, Ia., Oct. 18.—The funeral of Justice Miller took place here to-day, and was largely attended.

Back to China.

TACOMA, Oct. 18.—United States Marshal Brown started for San Francisco to-day with the contraband Chinese whom the British Columbia authorities refused to allow to land on British soil, and for whom there was no shelter at Port Townsend. The Chinamen will be returned to China from San Francisco via the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's line.

Horrors of Scurvy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—The ships R. R. Thomas, Captain Coulson, from New York, and Alexander McCullum, Captain O'Brien, from Baltimore, arrived here to-day with scurvy on board. There were four cases on the Thomas and seven on the McCullum. The sailors on the McCullum were in a horrible condition, their bodies being covered with running sores, their gums being black and swollen and hiding their teeth. The men said that during the 154 days' passage they had not tasted vegetables of any sort, and the meat given them was putrid. James Hayes and James Masure had become blind as a result of the disease. The quarantine officers will report the cases to the United States authorities. During the voyage Second Mate Kooper, of the Thomas, was lost overboard.

He is Deeply Grieved.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Katie Hart's strange death in the West Side hotel has wrought a marked change in the appearance and bearing of Jack McAuliffe. Those who know him best said at the time of the denial of his marriage to Katie Hart in San Francisco several months ago that Jack was not the sort of a man to tie himself to one woman, but the sudden death of the girl has affected him so that all his friends who have seen him are astonished. His face is haggard and worn, and his walk is spiritless. McAuliffe has bought a lot in Cypress Hill cemetery for himself and his wife.

Murdered a Man.

BOULDER, Col., Oct. 18.—W. R. Templer is being tried before Judge Rogers for insanity. Templer was the engineer on the Union Pacific who made a fast run across the continent, and chief of the division of Brotherhood Engineers at Laramie City, Wyoming. During his career as an engineer his father and mother died, leaving him a young sister to care for, who was sent to college. While receiving her education she was betrayed by a man who promised marriage. When the news reached Templer at Laramie City, he left his train, went east in search of his sister's betrayer and followed him from New York to Oakland. He then found the man, and after a brief conversation, drew a revolver and killed him. For this crime he was tried, found guilty and sentenced to penitentiary for life, served fifteen years, and for good behaviour he was honorably discharged. Judge Terry, who lately was shot in California, defended Temple. The cost of the trial was paid by the Brotherhood. Whenever he drinks this trouble haunts him and makes him almost wild. Of late he has been threatening people, hence the trial.

A Large Syndicate.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Five breweries in this city, and one in Milwaukee will combine in one company with a capital of five to seven million dollars.

Fifteen burglars and foot-pads were caught by the police last evening in houses on West Monroe street.

Chief of Police Murdered.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 16.—Chief of Police Hennessey died at 9 o'clock this morning. The tragedy was one which the chief and his most intimate friends had regarded as within the range of probability for some years, and for two or three years he had always been accompanied by some trusty friend. On his way home last night he walked to the door of his residence, and, pausing a moment to draw the latch-key from his pocket, turned into the doorway. It was while in this position, with his side turned toward his assassins, that the first two shots were fired. The weapons were double-barreled shotguns, and one barrel of each was fired at a time, and as quickly as the ambushed men could cock their guns the second barrels were fired. The chief drew his revolver and returned the fire, but the assassins escaped before the police arrived, and it is not known whether he hit any of them.

General Sprague Married.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Oct. 16.—General John W. Sprague, of Tacoma, Wash., and Mrs. A. W. Vance were married here yesterday. Mrs. Vance is a sister of General Sprague's first wife. The first Mrs. Sprague lived only one year, and after long remaining a widower, the general married Miss Frances Choate, of Milan, Ohio. She died five years ago.

IOWA W. C. T. U. SECEDES.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster Severs the State Organization From Miss Willard.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 18.—There was a warm time in the state convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union to-day. The non-partisan question was brought up, and Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, who with others left the national convention last year, warmly championed a non-partisan course. There was a bitter discussion, in which some of her opponents attacked her for sympathies with the Republican party. Mrs. Foster replied that she, as an American woman, clung to her right to exercise her liberties under the constitution. She was an intense Republican. A woman could be an intense Democrat and yet do non-partisan work for temperance. A lady arose and asked if a woman's opinion as a partisan should not be recognized in this emphatically, "No; there are absolutely no parties in this convention." Finally, after an all-day struggle, the Iowa union voted to be no longer identified with the national union, headed by Miss Willard. This was carried by a vote of 315 to 68. The dissenters withdrew with the intention of forming an Iowa union on a third party basis.

NORTHERN PACIFIC ELECTION.

The Stockholders Want More Dividends—A New Secretary Elected.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Northern Pacific election was held to-day. There was no contest in the election of the directors. The only interest was in the new board, which, in accordance with a resolution passed June 10, will hold its office three years. The old board was re-elected, except H. Abbott and D. S. Wegg, who succeed C. C. Beaman and C. H. Leland. A resolution recommending that the directors increase the rate of dividend or declare an extra dividend was passed. The lease of the Wisconsin Central was approved. After the stockholders' meeting had adjourned the directors were organized by re-electing the officers and electing George H. Earle secretary, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Samuel Wilkeson.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

Striking Car Drivers—Planters Want Reciprocity With U.S.

HAVANNA, Oct. 18.—The street car and bus companies have dismissed all the striking drivers, and have contracted with new drivers. The old drivers stoned the omnibus, injured several passengers. Some of the rioters were arrested. Severe measures were taken to preserve order. A number of cigar makers went on a strike yesterday. It was rumored that all trades will join the strike.

A meeting called by the board of planters yesterday, to consider the tariff question, was attended by the wealthiest planters of Cuba. They decided to send the Minister of the Colonies a petition in favor of reciprocity with the United States, and a revocation of the law of mercantile relations with Spain.

The Times to Canada.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The Times says: "If Canada desires to make the McKinley tariff law benefit instead of a cause of loss, the most likely method is to adopt frankly and fully a policy of free trade with the mother country. Canada will not be able to loosen all her commercial fetters at once; it will be enough for the present if the direction and aim are right."

More Boulangist Revelations.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—M. Nauquet, who for a long time was one of Boulanger's most trusted supporters, but who, at a recent meeting of the constituency which he represents in the Chamber of Deputies, announced that he had abandoned the General, has made further revelations regarding the inside history of the Boulangist movement. Nauquet says that resources of the Boulangist party having become exhausted through the extravagance of the General, the Royalists, who were secretly supporting the Boulangist movement, collected a fund amounting to 5,000,000 francs, which it was their intention should be devoted to securing the election of Boulangist candidates for Deputies. Half of this fund, according to Nauquet, was contributed by the Count of Paris. Of the whole amount given by the Royalists the Boulangist party secured only 1,300,000 francs, the remainder being diverted by General Boulanger from uses to which the subscribers meant this should be applied.

Big Breeze in Britain.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—A severe storm has prevailed along the north British coast. The wind blew with such fury that the British fleet lying at Scarboro was compelled to run to sea to escape being blown ashore. The admiral and 240 officers and men belonging to the fleet were left ashore. The officers had been dancing all night at a ball given by the mayor, and this morning when they attempted to board the vessels before they put to sea found it impossible owing to the heavy sea. Three sailors were washed overboard and drowned.

Balfour's Speech.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Chief Secretary Balfour's speech at Newcastle to-day was remarkable for its bold statements of fact without any attempt to support them by reference to proof or special instance. It is said, however, that he is reserving his grandest effort for to-morrow's speech, and it is hoped he will then give his reasons for asserting that the condition of Ireland is better than ever before and still improving. The Liberals are getting up a counter demonstration, and the Conservatives who gather to hear Balfour will be greeted by displays of battering rams and other reminders of that gentleman's methods of promoting social progress in Ireland. A meeting of national Liberals, held to-day, to consider the Irish famine question, was poorly attended and comparatively little interest seems to be taken by the party in this matter. The fact is that Mr. Luke's impartial report on the condition of the alleged famine threatened portion of Ireland has convinced the public that the extent of the trouble has been exaggerated, and it is recognized as impossible to raise an effective party on this subject. The members of the committee appointed at a meeting to investigate and report a plan of action are comparatively obscure men, the party leaders not being willing to identify themselves with the movement.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The German Socialist Meeting—British Trade With Servia.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The British minister at Belgrade has sent in a voluminous blue book, illustrating the possible advantages to be derived from an extension of British trade with Servia. He declares that Servia can supply pretty much everything in the line of food products which now are obtained from the United States, and that it would be a good way to retaliate for the McKinley bill, to obtain such commodities from the Servians instead of from America. The newspapers have taken up the matter and are urging the English merchants to accept the suggestion.

A meeting of Socialists was held last night at Berlin, at which a resolution was adopted demanding the Socialist congress in session at Halle to treat members of the Berlin opposition with respect, and protesting against their being called a clique.

A Hamburg group of Socialists, followers of Sassnic, decided to issue a manifesto, calling upon the workmen of Germany to assist the government in carrying out its social policy.

Two witnesses were called by the crown who testified that at the time of the explosion in the rent office of the Smith Barry estate in September, the tenants and sympathizers who congregated in the vicinity absolutely refused to lend a hand in putting out the fire that ensued and in other ways showed that they wanted to witness the destruction of the landlord's property.

It is regretted that there will be many riotious demonstrations in Turkey next Sunday, on account of the ill-feeling existing between the Greek churches and the Turkish officials. The closing of the churches by the order of the Patriarch as a mark of resentment at the petty persecution by the government has brought the issue to a crisis and the result may be very serious.

It is announced that the Sultan of Turkey will visit Berlin next summer to repay the visit which Emperor William paid him at Constantinople some months ago.

WOMEN FAINT AT THE SIGHT.

Nicolai's Horrible "Christ Before Pilate" Causes a Sensation in Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—A sensation has been caused here by the exhibition of a new pictorial representation of "Christ before Pilate."

The painting is by the Russian artist Nicolai. That it is a powerful realism may be inferred from the fact that scores of women fainted at the sight of the picture, which, though horrible, is strongely fascinating, and the salon where it is displayed is continually crowded to suffocation.

The subject is treated with an entirely different conception from that of Munkaczy in the famous painting bearing the same title.

The work is pronounced by critics to be vastly inferior to the latter in a purely artistic sense, but yet to possess a remarkable power which can hardly be attributed to simple realism.

STEAMERS IN COLLISION.

The Mogul Comes in Contact With the Cutch Off Nanaimo Harbor and Suffers Thereby.

The steamer Cutch came within a point of not getting into Nanaimo last night, and it was only the skillful management and cool judgment that prevented the Mogul from going to the bottom.

The party of farmer delegates were on the former boat. Mr. Campbell states that at first an accident of a very serious nature was anticipated. The Cutch was steaming along in pitchy darkness, at reduced speed and blowing her whistle as she neared shore. When about three miles out the Mogul was sighted and was then close on.

Immediately the Cutch was hove to and an effort made to avoid the on coming steamer, but a collision seemed inevitable. She came along at a fair rate of speed, striking the Cutch amidships, but doing no damage of any consequence. She reeled back with her stem stove in by contact with the iron sides of the Cutch. The Mogul at the time seemed to be acting strangely as though she was not under perfect control, and it was only the quick judgment of Captain John that prevented his steamer sending her to the bottom like a stone. He asked if he could render any assistance and showed his readiness to do all that was necessary in case of need, but the Mogul declined any help. She put into Nanaimo after the Cutch.

LAID TO REST.

The Funeral of the Late Capt. Jas. L. Dunn, of the Titania.

Almost every man who knew the late Capt. Jas. L. Dunn, of the bark Titania, attended his funeral, which took place this afternoon. The cortege was a very large one, all the employees of the H.B. company and other wharf street firms who had known the deceased and appreciated his good qualities, followed the remains to the grave. The funeral left the residence of Mr. T. R. Smith, assistant commissioner of the H. B. company, at 2.30, and proceeded to Christ Church Cathedral, where services were read by Rev. A. Beaulands, and the full choir sang burial hymns. From the church the funeral proceeded to Ross Bay cemetery, where the remains of one of the best captains that ever sailed into Victoria was laid at rest.

The hearse containing the deceased captain's remains was preceded by the clergy of Christ Church Cathedral, and the crew of the bark Titania. The following eight master mariners acted as pall bearers: Capt. Lewis, agent marine and fisheries; E. C. Baker, secretary of the pilot board; Capt. Devereaux, superintendent of the Esquimalt graving dock; Capt. Cocke, harbor master; Capt. Irving, manager of the C.P.N. Co.; Capt. Meyer; Capt. Walbran, of the SS. Danube; and Capt. Norman, of the bark Titania. Following the hearse was a large number of carriages, the first containing T. R. Smith, R. Smith, W. T. Livock, and C. Munroe, who were the chief mourners, after whom came Mr. A. J. Simpson, Mr. H. E. Field, Mr. Coles, Mr. F. Appleton, Mr. Horton, Mr. Ridgman, Mr. Sharp, Mr. Earsman. After these came a number of carriages containing friends of the deceased.

JERUSALEM THE GOLDEN

DR. TALMAGE'S THIRD SERMON ON HIS TOUR IN PALESTINE.

The Famous Brooklyn Divine Describes the Scene of Christ's Crucifixion—Overpowering Emotion While on Calvary's Sacred Hill.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 12.—This morning Dr. Talmage delivered his third sermon on his recent tour in Palestine in the Academy of Music in this city. The large building was crowded and numbers were away disappointed. This was the more significant because it had been publicly announced that the same sermon would be preached in the evening at the New York academy, which The Christian Herald had rented for that purpose. In spite of this fact, unprecedented since the days of Chalmers, both buildings were crowded to excess, and many were turned away from the doors, both morning and evening. Dr. Talmage must have preached today to 10,000 different persons. The doctor spoke as follows from the text: "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning."—Psalm cxxxvii, 5.

Paralysis of his best hand, the withering of its muscles and nerves, is here invoked if the author allows to pass out of mind the grandeurs of the Holy City where once he dwelt. Jeremiah, seated by the river Euphrates, wrote this psalm, and not David. Afraid I am of anything that approaches imprecation, and yet I can understand how any one who has ever been at Jerusalem should in enthusiasm of soul cry out, whether he be sitting by the Euphrates, or the Hudson, or the Thames, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning!" You see it is a city unlike all others for topography, for history, for significance, for style of population, for water works, for ruins, for towers, for domes, for ramparts, for literature, for tragedies, for memorable birthplaces, for sepulchers, for conflagrations and famines, for victories and defeats.

IN JERUSALEM.

I am here at last in this very Jerusalem, and on a housetop, just after the dawn of the morning of December 3, with an old inhabitant to point out the salient features of the scenery. "Now," I said, "where is Mount Zion?" "Here at your right." "Where is Mount Olivet?" "In front of where you stand." "Where is the Garden of Gethsemane?" "In yonder valley." "Where is Mount Calvary?" Before he answered I saw it. No unprejudiced mind can have a moment's doubt as to where it is. Yonder I see a hill in the shape of a human skull, and the Bible says that Calvary was the "place of a skull." Not only is it skull shaped, but just beneath the forehead of the hill is a cavern that looks like eyeless sockets. Within the grotto under it is the shape of the inside of a skull. Then the Bible says that Christ was crucified outside the gate, and this is outside the gate, while the site formerly selected was inside the gate. Besides that, this skull hill was for ages the place where malefactors were put to death, and Christ was slain as a malefactor.

The Saviour's assassination took place beside a thoroughfare along which people went "wagging their heads," and there is the ancient thoroughfare. I saw at Cairo, Egypt, a clay mould of that skull hill, made by the late Gen. Gordon, the arbiter of nations. While Empress Helena, 80 years of age, and imposed upon by having three crosses exhumed before her dim eyes, as though they were the three crosses of Bible story, selected another site as Calvary, all recent travelers agree that the one I point out to you was without doubt the scene of the most terrific and overwhelming tragedy this planet ever witnessed.

CALVARY.

There were a thousand things we wanted to see that third day of December, and our dragoman proposed this and that and the other journey, but I said: "First of all show us Calvary. Something might happen if we went elsewhere, and sickness or accident might hinder our seeing the sacred mount. If we see nothing else we must see that, and see it this morning." Some of us in carriage and some on mule back, we were soon on the way to the most sacred spot that the world has ever seen or ever will see. Coming to the base of the hill we first went inside the skull of rocks. It is called Jeremiah's grotto, for there the prophet wrote his book of Lamentations. The grotto is thirty-five feet high, and its top and side are malachite, green, brown, black, white, red and gray.

Coming forth from those pictured subterraneous passages we begin to climb the steep sides of Calvary. As we go up we see cracks and crevices in the rocks, which I think were made by the convulsions of nature when Jesus died. On the hill lay a limestone rock, white, but tinged with crimson, the white so suggestive of purity and the crimson of sacrifice that I said, "That stone would be beautifully appropriate for a memorial wall in my church, now building in America; and the stone now being brought on camel's back from Sinai across the desert, when put under it, how significant of the law and the gospel! And these lips of stone will continue to speak of justice and mercy long after all our living lips have uttered their last message."

So I rolled it down the hill and transported it. When that day comes for which many of you have prayed—the dedication of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, the third immense structure we have reared in this city, and that makes it somewhat difficult, being the third structure, a work such as no other church was ever called on to undertake—we invite you in the main entrance of that building to look upon a memorial wall containing the most suggestive and solemn and tremendous antiquities ever brought together—this, rent with the earthquake at the giving of the law at Sinai, the other rent at the crucifixion on Calvary.

WHERE THE CROSS OF CHRIST STOOD.

It is impossible for you to realize what our emotions were as we gathered, a group of men and women, all saved by the blood of the Lamb, on a bluff of Calvary, just wide enough to contain three crosses. I said to my family and friends: "I think here is where stood the cross of the impenitent burglar, and there the cross of the miscreant, and here between, I think, stood the cross on which all our hopes depend." As I opened the nineteenth chapter of John to read a chill blast struck the hill and a cloud hovered, the natural solemnity increasing the spiritual solemnity. I read a little, but broke down. I defy any emotional Christian man sitting upon Golgotha to read aloud and with unbroken voice, or with any voice at all, the whole of that account in Luke and John, of which these sentences are a fragment: "They took Jesus and led him away, and he, bearing his cross, went forth into a place called the place of a skull, where they crucified him and two others with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst;" "Behold thy mother!" "I thirst;" "This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise!" "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do;" "If it be possible, let this cup pass from me." What sighs, what sobs, what tears, what paroxysms of sorrow, what surging oceans of agony in those utterances!

While we sat there the whole scene came before us. All around the top and the sides and the foot of the hill a mob raged. They gnash their teeth and shake their clinched fists at him. Here the cavalry horses champ their bits and paw the earth and snort at the smell of the carnage. Yonder a group of gamblers are pitching up as to who shall have the coat of the dying Saviour. There are women almost dead with grief among the crowd, his mother [illegible] his mant; and yonder [illegible] rows he has comforted and whose guilt he had pardoned. Here a man dips a sponge into sour wine, and by a stick lifts it to the hot and cracked lips. The hemorrhage of the five wounds has done its work.

"IT IS FINISHED."

The atmospheric conditions are such as the world saw never before or since. It was not a solar eclipse, such as astronomers record or we ourselves have seen. It was a bereavement of the heavens! Darker! until the towers of the temple were no longer visible. Darker! until the surrounding hills disappeared. Darker! until the inscription above the middle cross becomes illegible. Darker! until the chin of the dying Lord falls upon the breast, and he sighed with this last sigh the words, "It is finished!"

As we sat there a silence took possession of us, and we thought, this is the center from which continents have been touched, and all the world shall yet be moved. Toward this hill the prophets pointed forward. Toward this hill the apostles and martyrs pointed backward. To this all heaven pointed downward. To this with foaming execrations perdition pointed upward. Round it circles all history, all time, all eternity, and with this scene painters have covered the mightiest canvas, and sculptors cut the richest marble, and orchestras rolled their grandest oratorios and churches lifted their greatest doxologies and heaven built its highest thrones.

THE GARDEN OF OLIVES.

Unable longer to endure the pressure of this scene we moved on and into a garden of olives, a garden which in the right season is full of flowers, and here is the reputed tomb of Christ. You know the Book says, "In the midst of the garden was a sepulcher." I think this was the garden and this the sepulcher. It is shattered of course. About four steps down we went into this, which seemed a family tomb. There is room in it for about five bodies. We measured it and found it about eight feet high, and nine feet wide and fourteen feet long. The crypt where I think our Lord slept was seven feet long. I think that there once lay the king wrapped in his last slumber. On some of these rocks the Roman government set its seal. At the gate of this mausoleum on the first Easter morning the angels rolled the stone thundering down the hill. Up these steps walked the lacerated feet of the conqueror, and from these heights he looked off upon the city that had cast him out, and upon the world he had come to redeem, and at the heavens through which he would soon ascend.

But we must hasten back to the city. There are stones in the wall which Solomon had lifted. Stop here and see a startling proof of the truth of prophecy. In Jeremiah, thirty-first chapter and fortieth verse, it is said that Jerusalem shall be built through the ashes. What ashes, people have been asking. Were those ashes just put into the prophecy to fill up? No! The meaning has been recently discovered. Jerusalem is now being built out in a certain direction where the ground has been submitted to chemical analysis, and it has been found to be the ashes cast out from the sacrifices of the ancient temple—ashes of wood and ashes of bones of animals. There are great mounds of ashes, accumulation of centuries of sacrifices. It has taken all these thousands of years to discover what Jeremiah meant when he said, "Behold the days shall come, saith the Lord, that the city shall be built to the Lord from the tower of Hananeel unto the gate of the corner, and the whole valley of the dead bodies and of the ashes." The people of Jerusalem are at this very time fulfilling that prophecy. One handful of that ashes on which they are building is enough to prove the divinity of the Scriptures! Pass by the place where the corner stone of the ancient temple was laid three thousand years ago by Solomon.

Explorers have been digging, and they found that corner stone seventy-five feet beneath the surface. It is fourteen feet long, and three feet eight inches high, and beautifully cut and shaped, and near it was an earthen jar that was supposed to have contained the oil of consecration used at the ceremony of laying the corner stone. Yonder, from a depth of forty feet, a signet ring has been brought up inscribed with the words "Haggai, the Son of Shebnaiah," showing it belonged to the Prophet Haggai, and to that seal ring he refers in his prophecy, saying, "I will make thee as a signet." I walk further on far under ground, and I find myself in Solomon's stables, and see the places worn in the stone pillars by the halters of some of his twelve thousand horses. Further on, look at the pillars on which Mount Moriah was built. You know that the mountain was too small for the temple, and so they built the mountain out on pillars, and I saw eight of those pillars, each one strong enough to hold a mountain.

THE MOSQUE OF OMAR.

Here we enter the mosque of Omar, a throne of Mohammedanism, where we are met at the door by officials who bring slippers that we must put on before we take a step further, lest our feet pollute the sacred places. A man attempting to go in without these slippers would be struck dead on the spot. These awkward sandals adjusted as well as we could, we are led to where we see a rock with an opening in it, through which, no doubt, the blood of sacrifice in the ancient temple rolled down and away. At vast expense the mosque has been built, but so somber is the place I am glad to get through it, and take off the cumbrous slippers and step into the clear air.

Yonder is a curve of stone which is part of a bridge which once reached from Mount Moriah to Mount Zion, and over it David walked or rode to prayers in the temple. Here is the wailing place of the Jews, where for centuries, almost perpetually, during the daytime whole generations of the Jews have stood putting their head or lips against the wall of what was once Solomon's temple. It was one of the saddest and most solemn and impressive scenes I ever witnessed to see scores of these descendants of Abraham, with tears rolling down their cheeks and lips trembling with emotion, a book of psalms open before them, bewailing the ruin of the ancient temple and the captivity of their race, and crying to God for the restoration of the temple in all its original splendor. Most affecting scene! And such a prayer as that, century after century, I am sure God will answer, and in some way the departed grandeur will return, or something better. I looked over the shoulders of some of them and saw that they were reading from the mournful psalms of David, while I have been told that this is the prayer which many chant:

For the temple that lies desolate,
We sit in solitude and mourn;
For the palace that is destroyed,
We sit in solitude and mourn;
For the walls that are overthrown,
We sit in solitude and mourn;
For our majesty that is departed,
We sit in solitude and mourn;
For our great men that lie dead,
We sit in solitude and mourn;
For priests who have stumbled,
We sit in solitude and mourn.

JERUSALEM THE GOLDEN.

[illegible] to more than Oriental magnificence, it may not be precious stones and architectural majesty, but in a moral splendor that shall eclipse forever all that David or Solomon saw.

FROM A HOUSETOP.

But I must get back to the housetop where I stood early this morning, and before the sun sets, that I may catch a wider vision of what the city now is and once was. Standing here on the housetop I see that the city was built for military safety. Some old warrior, I warrant, selected the spot. It stands on a hill 2,600 feet above the level of the sea, and deep ravines on three sides do the work of military trenches. Compact as no other city was compact. Only three miles journey round, and the three ancient towers, Hippicus, Phasaelus, Mariamne, frowning death upon the approach of all enemies.

As I stood there on the housetop in the midst of the city I said, "O Lord, reveal to me this metropolis of the world that I may see it as it once appeared." No one was with me, for there are some things you can see more vividly with no one but God and yourself present. Immediately the mosque of Omar, which has stood for ages on Mount Moriah, the site of the ancient temple, disappeared, and the most honored structure of all the ages lifted itself in the light, and I saw it—the temple, the ancient temple! Not Solomon's temple, but something grander than that. Not Zerubbabel's temple, but something more gorgeous than that. It was Herod's temple, built for the one purpose of eclipsing all its architectural predecessors.

There it stood, covering nineteen acres, and ten thousand workmen had been forty-six years in building it. Blaze of magnificence! Bewildering range of porticos and ten gateways and double arches and Corinthian capitals chiseled into lilies and acanthus. Masonry beveled and grooved into such delicate forms that it seemed to tremble in the light. Cloisters with two rows of Corinthian columns, royal arches, marble steps pure as though made out of frozen snow, carving that seemed like a panel of the door of heaven let down and set in, the facade of the building on shoulders at each end lifting the glory higher and higher, and walls wherein gold put out the silver, and the carbuncle put out the gold, and the jasper put out the carbuncle, until in the changing light they would all seem to come back again into a chorus of harmonious color. The temple! The temple! Doxology in stone! Anthems soaring in rafters of Lebanon cedar! From side to side and from foundation to gilded pinnacle the frozen prayer of all ages!

THE CITY OF GOD.

From this housetop on the December afternoon we look out in another direction, and I see the king's palace, covering a hundred and sixty thousand square feet, three rows of windows illumining the inside brilliance, the hallway wainscoted with all styles of colored marbles surmounted by arabesque, vermilion and gold, looking down on moshes, music of waterfalls in the garden outside answering the music of the harps thrummed by deft fingers inside; banisters over which princes and princesses leaned, and talked to kings and queens ascending the stairway. O Jerusalem, Jerusalem! Mountain city! City of God! Joy of the whole earth! Stronger than Gibraltar and Sebastopol, surely it never could have been captured!

But while standing there on the housetop that December afternoon I hear the crash of the twenty-three mighty sieges which have come against Jerusalem in the ages past. Yonder is the pool of Hezekiah and Siloam, but again and again were those waters reddened with human gore. Yonder are the towers, but again and again they fell. Yonder are the high walls, but again and again they were leveled. To rob the treasures from her temple and palace and dethrone this queen city of the earth all nations plotted. David taking the throne at Hebron decides that he must have Jerusalem for his capital, and coming up from the south at the head of two hundred and eighty thousand troops he captures it. Look, here comes another siege of Jerusalem!

The Assyrians under Sennacherib, enslaved nations at his chariot wheel, having taken two hundred thousand captives in his one campaign; Phoenician cities kneeling at his feet, Egypt trembling at the flash of his sword, comes upon Jerusalem. Look, another siege! The armies of Babylon under Nebuchadnezzar come down and take a plunder from Jerusalem such as no other city ever had to yield, and ten thousand of her citizens trudge off into Babylonian bondage. Look, another siege! and Nebuchadnezzar and his hosts by night go through a breach of the Jerusalem wall, and the morning finds some of them seated triumphant in the temple, and what they could not take away because too heavy they break up—the brazen sea, and the two wreathed pillars Jachin and Boaz.

THE SIEGES OF JERUSALEM.

Another siege of Jerusalem, and Pompey with the battering rams which a hundred men would roll back, and then, at full run forward, would bang against the wall of the city, and catapults hurling the rocks upon the people, left twelve thousand dead and the city in the clutch of the Roman war eagle. Look, a more desperate siege of Jerusalem! Titus with his tenth legion on Mount of Olives, and ballista arranged on the principle of the pendulum to swing great bowlders against the walls and towers, and miners digging under the city making galleries of beams underground which, set on fire, tumbled great masses of houses and human beings into destruction and death. All is taken now but the temple, and Titus, the conqueror, wants to save the unharmed; but a soldier, contrary to orders, hurls a torch into the temple and it is consumed. Many strangers were in the city at the time and ninety-seven thousand captives were taken, and Josephus says one million one hundred thousand lay dead.

THE SIEGE OF THE CRUSADERS.

But looking from this house top, the siege that most absorbs us is that of the crusaders. England and France and all Christendom wanted to capture the Holy Sepulcher and Jerusalem, then in possession of the Mohammedans, under the command of one of the loveliest, bravest and mightiest men that ever lived; for justice must be done him though he was a Mohammedan—glorious Saladin! Against him came the armies of Europe, under Richard Cœur de Lion, king of England; Philip Augustus, king of France; Tancred, Raymond, Godfrey and other valiant men; marching on through fevers and plagues and battle charges and sufferings as intense as the world ever saw. Saladin in [illegible] own physician, and from the walls of Jerusalem, seeing King Richard afoot, sends him a horse. With all the world looking on the armies of Europe come within sight of Jerusalem.

At the first glimpse of the city they fall on their faces in reverence and then lift anthems of praise. Feuds and hatreds among themselves were given up, and Raymond and Tancred, the bitterest rivals, embraced while the armies looked on. Then the battering rams rolled, and the catapults swung, and the swords thrust, and the carnage raged. Godfrey of Bouillon is the first to mount the wall, and the Crusaders, a cross on every shoulder or breast, having taken the city, march bareheaded and barefooted to what they suppose to be the Holy Sepulcher, and kiss the tomb. Jerusalem the possession of Christendom. But Saladin retook the city, and for the last four hundred years it has been in possession of cruel and polluted Mohammedanism!

A CRUSADE NEEDED NOW.

Another crusade is needed to start for Jerusalem, a crusade in this Nineteenth Century greater than all those of the past centuries put together. A crusade in which you and I will march. A crusade without weapons of death, but only the sword of the Spirit. A crusade that will make not a single wound, nor start one tear of distress, nor incendiarize one homestead. A crusade of Gospel Peace! And the Cross again be lifted on Calvary, not as once an instrument of pain, but a signal of invitation, and the mosque of Omar shall give place to a church of Christ, and Mount Zion become the dwelling place not of David, but of David's Lord, and Jerusalem, purified of all its idolatries, and taking back the Christ she once cast out, shall be made a worthy type of that heavenly city which Paul styled "the mother of us all," and which St. John saw, "the holy Jerusalem descending out of heaven from God." Through its gates may we all enter when our work is done, and in its temple, greater than all the earthly temples piled in one, may we worship.

Russian pilgrims lined all the roads around the Jerusalem we visited last winter. They had walked hundreds of miles, and their feet bled on the way to Jerusalem. Many of them had spent their last farthing to get there, and they had left some of those who started with them dying or dead by the roadside. An aged woman, exhausted with the long way, begged her fellow pilgrims not to let her die until she had seen the Holy City. As she came to the gate of the city she could not take another step, but she was carried in, and then said, "Now hold my head up till I can look upon Jerusalem," and her head lifted, she took one look, and said: "Now I die content; I have seen it! I have seen it!" Some of us before we reach the heavenly Jerusalem may be as tired as that, but angels of mercy will help us in, and one glimpse of the temple of God and the Lamb, and one good look at the "king in his beauty," will more than compensate for all the toils and tears and heartbreaks of the pilgrimage. Hallelujah! Amen!

THE TWO RACES.

We have never been able to subscribe to the policy that would invite an influx of Chinese to these shores, as a means of opening up unrestricted commercial relations with the Chinese empire. The bargain would be altogether one-sided. The bulk of our population would suffer that a few exporters might reap a golden harvest. Labor on this continent cannot compete with the Chinese, nor is it compatible with our institutions that they should be forced to do so. Only an intelligent people are capable of self-government, and intelligence and a hard struggle for existence, such as is brought by long hours and small pay, are not, as everybody knows, boon companions. The Chinese themselves, in the narrowness of their apprehension of matters and things, their intellectual immobility, as it were, furnish a striking illustration of the consequences which attend a severe struggle for existence. Not since CONFUCIUS have they had a philosopher. The struggle for existence has been too severe. The lower classes were compelled to devote all of their energies to the keeping of body and soul together; the favored classes, as is the case with favored classes the world over, were content to let well enough alone. Is it desirable that a similar condition of things should overtake this country? Would it be expedient, would it be moral to invite conditions which would reduce the bulk of our population to the hard struggle for existence inevitable of cheap labor, and of competion with a class of people who know nothing of our institutions, and who care less? We do not want commerce with China at the expense of upsetting our political and social system. With the destiny that we have before us if we will only adhere to the grand principles which were set forth in magna charta, and which a little over a century ago were reiterated with special emphasis in the Declaration of Independence, can we afford to jeopardize their fruition by inviting conditions which must result in moral and mental sterility? The Chinese have had their day. Heaven gave them an opportunity but they failed to avail themselves of it. Why, even their coal mines yet remain undeveloped. Must we take these effete people on our backs and especially since we know that they must inevitably prove old men of the sea? Capital may argue that the necessities of trade are paramount and philanthropists and sentimentalists may rant about the brotherhood of man, but we who set the ball of civilization rolling in the right direction must respectfully decline to offer an asylum to a people who gave progress the cold shoulder thousands of years ago. We frankly say right here, that if commercial men expect labor to sacrifice their interests, in the interests of trans-Pacific trade, they are expecting more than they will get, and we may further add, that if the church persists in its pro-Chinese sentiments it will do so at the expense of its following with all men who depend on their hands for their daily bread. In the city of New York a mixed audience, says Bishop HUNTINGTON, cheered the name of CHRIST and hissed the name of the church. What does this mean? Bishop HUNTINGTON plainly tells the readers of the Forum that working men have come to the conclusion that the church is no longer in touch with them. The steadily widening gulf between capital and labor, and the increasing disrespect among working people for the church, are features which neither capital nor the church can afford to disregard. They portend anarchy and atheism. Charity begins at home. We can afford to invite to these shores the people of Europe, for they are kin to us and are of the same religion, and they easily enter into the spirit of our civilization. With the Orientals, however, it is altogether different. They despise our ways and our institutions from whatever point of view they contemplate them. Our foibles are their derision. They refuse to assimilate our ideas. In San Francisco and in this city we have Hongkong epitomized. For ages as the Chinese have been [illegible] its for years they are still Chinese, still pagans, and a curse socially and industrially. Victoria would be a hundred per cent. better off were she rid of the Chinese. The Chinese are but parasites and must be treated as such.

MODERATE PROTECTIONISTS.

The TIMES has a contemporary which [illegible] Taking exception to some remarks passed by the TIMES relative to the inconsistency of the National Policyists in holding to the policy of protection for themselves, but cursing it roundly as practised by the Yankees, it works off a column or more of drivel and winds up with what is equivalent to a positive negative of its attitude. We quote:

The position of the Conservative party in this matter is that of moderate protectionists. We need diversified industries in the country, and it is only by means of a moderate protective system that they can be established. Excessive protection is not necessary, and may be grossly abused. Therefore Conservatives condemn the McKinley tariff as unnecessary and injurious, and condemn it too as hostile to Canada, which it plainly is.

"Moderate protectionists." Will our long-winded contemporary have the effrontery to insist that we have in the Foster bill moderate protection? Is there anything moderate in a protection which reduces the purchasing power of a dollar to seventy cents? Is there moderate protection in a law which compels the consumer in this Province to pay $1.30 for what he should only pay $1.00? It seems to us that the organ which can associate Fosterism with moderate protection is nothing more nor less than what we have described the National Policyist to be, a person too morally oblique to concede to others what he demands for himself.

If Macdonaldism is synonymous with moderate protection, why was the tariff wall raised last winter? Can we reconcile moderate protection with such a more as that? The average Tory is very quick to perceive the mote in the eye of a Radical, but as to the beam in his own eye, that is quite another matter. The contention that Sir JOHN MACDONALD is in favor of moderate protection is not borne out by the complexion of his policy, while the fact that he objects to being treated to a dose of his own medicine is apparent in the bitterness with which he has discussed the McKinley bill. We hold that in view of the high tariff wall which Sir JOHN has permitted to be thrown around Canada, that he should point to the passage of the McKinley bill as a vindication of National Policy. When Canada shall adopt moderate protection, then can she point to the McKinley bill with bitterness and allude to it as unfriendly. Under the circumstances, however, she can do nothing of the kind. What Canada practises for herself she is bound in decency to approve in its widest application. She cannot consistently demand a free market of her neighbor and yet close her own against him.

IS JUSTICE OPEN-EYED?

The failure of the prosecution to make out a case against two men for drugging a race horse, at the late meeting of the Jockey Club, will be regretted by all true lovers of honorable sport. It looks almost as if there had been a miscarriage of justice. The evidence was entirely circumstantial, but it was strong; although probably not sufficient to secure a conviction by a jury it was strong enough, in the opinion of many, to justify further proceedings. The Jockey Club, we regret to see, was little more than a spectator of the proceedings. In our opinion, it should have been the first to prosecute, and no effort should have been wanting to expose the contemptible trick of which the prisoners stood charged. We do not know where the fault lies, but it is a fact that the administration of the law, in many important instances of late, has been a disgrace to British justice, of which we all as Canadians are so prone to boast. This may be due to the source of the stream. Crystal water cannot flow from an impure fountain.

IS IT SWALLOWING PRIDE?

Our morning contemporary, quoting LAURIER on the policy of the Liberal party, comments thus: "So the Liberal party, if it has any pride, is determined to put in its pocket and go hat in hand to Washington to beg for unrestricted reciprocity." Comment such as this has nothing to recommend it as argument. It is the raving of unconquerable prejudice against the Yankees. Sir CHARLES TUPPER goes to Spain in quest of trade and the mission is treated by the Tory press as not inconsistent with self-respect. The Hon. ADAM BROWN will go to Jamaica on a similar mission and that is not incompatible with Tory pride. A mission to the United States, however, in search of trade relations is the mission of sycophants, in other words, is eating dirt. If it was on record that the United States had rejected proffers of reciprocity that Canada herself would not have rejected the position of the two countries reversed, we would be among the first to oppose going hat in hand to Washington with overtures for freer trade relations. But it is not on record that Sir JOHN has ever proposed reciprocity with the States on a basis as favorable to them as to Canada. Reciprocity in natural products alone does not suit the United States. They have [illegible] should the United States especially care to reciprocate in iron, coal, wheat, barley, vegetables and even eggs? It should strike anyone that reciprocity of this kind would be of greater proportional benefit to Canada than to the States, for while the States would consume all that Canada could produce, Canada on the other hand would prove but an indifferent market for the raw products [illegible] and manufactures generally. Unless the United States can obtain reciprocity on these terms it would be of no value to her. Sir JOHN, however, refuses to entertain reciprocity on terms that would be mutually advantageous to both countries. Unless he can have wholly the best of the bargain, he refuses to trade at all. Now the Liberals propose a different policy. Realizing that the United States can have no possible object in exchanging iron for iron, coal for coal, hay for hay, wheat for wheat, flour for flour, barley for barley, and eggs for eggs, they propose that in order to secure a market in the States for these products to admit American manufactures free. Is this going to Washington hat in hand? It seems to us that it is a pure business proposition. Reciprocity of this kind would be the making of British Columbia. It would develop half a dozen dormant coal mines; it would stimulate the lumber industry; it would set in motion the granite quarries, and together with these would lessen the cost of living, and that without injury to the local agriculturist. The value of the American market to Canada has been most forcibly demonstrated within the last 60 days. When it became an assured fact that the McKinley bill would pass, the demand for Canadian farm produce at once manifested itself and millions of dollars worth were shipped across the border. Later the abrogation of the export tax on Canadian lumber has produced a boom in that line, all of which is significant of the tremendous export trade Canada might have if she only had sense enough to admit American manufactures free. But in spite of the manifest advantages which would accrue to Canada were reciprocity in operation, there are journals so stupid that they object to the removal of the export tax on lumber for no other reason than that Americans are interested in Canadian lumber woods. Could reasons more puerile than this be offered? Is it not dog-in-the-mangerish? But this is not all. The Toronto Empire is so pig-headed that it is opposed to the opening of the United States markets for the iron ores of Canada. Says the London, Ont., Advertiser on this subject:

"British iron masters, like most other British capitalists, prefer to invest their capital in localities which seem to offer greater opportunities for realization. Their loyalty runs down the line of pounds, shillings and pence, and they would not place $1 in a mine or in a furnace in Canada if they were persuaded that it could earn more when similarly invested in the United States. Canada is no more to the British iron masters, of whom the Empire speaks, than is Greenland, or Matabeleland, or Terra del Fuego—unless there are more pounds, shillings and pence in it for them. "Loyalty" and sentiment do well enough for Canadian light-weight politicians, but British iron masters want something with more body to it, and for $1 that they invest in opening an iron mine or building a blast furnace in Canada under existing conditions, they will invest £100 in the United States. And if the Toronto Empire does not believe what we say, we ask it to pause and see how many British iron men will visit Canada, and what they will do when they have come.

These are our sentiments. Tear down the commercial barriers that separate Canada from the United States, and Canada will be as available to English capital as the States. The trade of 65,000,000 of people cannot be ignored if Canada would prosper. The Liberal policy as announced by Mr. LAURIER, is the policy of business. In attempting to effect its realization there is no more pocketing of pride about it than there would be for Manitoba to offer to exchange wheat with British Columbia for lumber.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The organ of the government hastens to explain that it did not bid for Mr. LADNER. It does not want his support and will be pleased to see him elected, although his election may defeat the government.

The Toronto Globe says: The Speaker, a Liberal weekly, and the Saturday Review contain in their last issues to hand long reviews of the work on the Chinook jargon recently written by Mr. HORATIO HALE, of Clinton, Ont. This jargon, as every one knows, was invented when the white traders began to visit Oregon as a means of communication between them and the numerous native tribes, as well as among the natives themselves, who spoke a variety of languages. Twelve of these tongues differed as much from one another as English and Hebrew. The jargon is now diffused among the fifty tribes of Oregon, British Columbia and Alaska, and is of inestimable service not only to commerce, but science, to missionary effort, and to the convenience of travelers. Mr. HALE, an American by birth, is a philologist of the first rank. He has resided at Clinton for many years and has written valuable books on the Indian languages of North America. It is a pity that the Dominion or Provincial Government cannot see its way to providing a fund or a bureau for such investigations. In a few years it may be difficult to carry them on at all.

THE COMING RACE.

TO THE EDITOR:—Your correspondent, "Fiat Justitia Ruat Cœlum," in referring to your "leader" of the 14th inst., would seem to possess, as our American friends say, a level head, in that he can take a fairly unbiased view of this subject. The action taken by our local government, acquiesced in by the Dominion, has given rise to certain misgivings among outsiders, especially [illegible] Chinese, at San Francisco, appear to have been pushed to the breaking point. It seems, therefore, that the time will soon arrive when the conditions of their admittance and supervision will have either to made more stringent or totally revised.

With the exception of ourselves and the Americans of the Pacific slope, the world generally looks upon our mode with doubt. Now, the men who say to such outsiders, "none of your business," must reflect that the opinions of a bystander are often more valuable than of those nearly interested, more especially when those opinions are held by men who by their ability and prudent statesmanships have shown the world that whatever they may say is worth listening to.

Many who have recently come intending to make their abode permanently in the province, would like to see the question as it concerns ourselves, gone into to the fullest extent for the benefit of all who are striving for the country's good. Is not that policy best which is for the good of the greatest number of our people? The question comes round again to the old point, as your correspondent shows that the tariff, or to put it more plainly, the prosperity of the manufacturer versus the prosperity of the people. A series of articles such as that you have commenced, put it in what light you may, and weighing clearly, on one side the use Chinese are to us, and on the other side the loss we sustain through their own trading—would, with your wide circulation, do more to educate us than all the laws that have been passed.

We have among us certain Chinese gentlemen who have shown us what encouragement and friendly treatment will do towards their adopting our habits. The hordes of foreigners who have for years reached London and other large centres of population lived at first like the Chinese, but they have developed into becoming a blessing in disguise. Do not our Chinese, after saving every cent to carry to their country, usually return after a time? and does not every return mean a longer stay? I am,

AN ADMIRER OF THE RACE.

THE ANGLICAN CHURCH SYNOD.

TO THE EDITOR:—It is pleasant to see this synod in session, and especially to find laymen attending and taking part in the proceedings. By going on with such assemblies, we shall soon find laymen coming to the front and discussing questions which the clergy do not care to have stirred up. The Presbyterian assemblies in the States may be taken as a specimen of what we may expect from the Episcopal synods, when they have learned their strength. Our friends in the States are revising the Westminster Confession of Faith, improving much of it out of existence, and there can be little doubt that when Anglicans learn to meet and manage their own affairs, they will undertake to remold their forms and creeds. In the case of this Synod, a beginning of a very rudimentary nature has to be made, viz., they have to ascertain to what church they belong and under what government they live. Major Dupont put the very proper question whether any power in England, say the Archbishop of Canterbury would be able to interfere with the proposed Synod and the working of the church in this province. The answer of the bishop was not as full as it should have been. By the judgment of Lord Penzance, which confirmed to Dr. Colenso, Dr. Hills and such colonials the funds given to maintain a bishopric, though there was legally no bishop, it was decided that churches in the colonies might remain as branches of the Church of England in a colony, that a clergyman consecrated as Bishop could perform such services as confirmation and other functions which only a bishop can, but His Lordship pointed out, clearly, that he could have no authority over his clergy of a repressive nature, unless the legislature of the Colony endowed them with such. He was, Lord Penzance said, to make enquiry into any case demanding discipline, but to enforce his decision, he was to apply to the civil power. The meaning of that is, that supposing a clergyman in British Columbia were to preach Unitarian doctrine and to practise Polygamy, the Colonial Bishop cannot remove him from his living or excommunicate him. He must have him up before Sir Matthew to be dealt with. The loser has then an appeal to Ottawa, and thence to the Privy Council. There is no appeal to the Archbishop of Canterbury or any ecclesiastical court. The Archbishop can try cases only on appeal from a bishop's court, and British Columbia has no bishop. Clergy having taken an oath to abide by no decision of a colonial bishop are not bound by that even. This does not look like a nice arrangement for a church, and I think Major Dupont is right in urging a union with the church in Canada, breaking away from England and forming a voluntary association in which those interested in the church should govern themselves. It cannot be a fine prospect to have another case of church discipline up before Sir Mathew and appealed, perhaps, like the precious metals case, to the Privy Council. Dr. Hills says they bind themselves to abide by the principals of the Church of England. So long as they remain a branch of the Church of England they are bound to every letter and form governing the church at home, and to any reform which may take place, such as celebrating marriages with deceased wife's sister, when Parliament passes that measure. The decision of the Bishop of Lincoln's case will be binding here, when it is known, but the civil court and not Dr. Hills will have to enforce it. How much better to have an association in which the religiously minded could consult their own consciences.

JAMES ANOTS.

VISITING VICTORIA.

British Farmer Delegates Arrive at Noon To-day—Their Opinions.

The British Farmer Delegates, who are at present touring through Canada to obtain practical demonstration of its agricultural advantages, reached Victoria to-day by the noon train from Nanaimo, and were met at the railway station by Mayor Grant and several of the aldermen, and were taken to the Driard hotel where rooms had been engaged for them, and lunch was served.

The party of delegates is composed of twelve gentlemen, but two of them, Col. Fane and Mr. Pitt, are not at present with the main body. They are in Canada by invitation of Sir Charles Tupper, acting for the Dominion Government and they will make individual reports on their return of the country, its resources and advantages for immigration. These will be printed and employed as immigration literature. A French gentleman, M. Pierre Foursin, a gentleman farmer of Normandy, also accompanies the delegation, and will furnish the agricultural society of France with a lengthy report when he returns. Mr. G. H. Campbell, of Winnipeg, who was formerly in the employ of the C.P.R., has the party in charge, his acquaintance with all parts of the Dominion making him a good guide. The gentlemen composing the party are:

Geo. Brown, Caithness, Scotland.
E. R. Murphy, Tralee, Ireland.
Pierre Foursin, Paris, France.
John T. Wood, Halewood, Lancashire.
Geo. Hutchinson, Penrith, Cumberland.
Major D. W. Stevenson, Londonderry.
H. Summers, Reading, Eng.
Wm. Scotson, Mersley Hill, Liverpool.
Wm. Edwards, Ruthin, Wales.
Arthur Daniel, Norwich, Norfolk.
Nolen Spier, Newton, Glasgow.

Several of the party were interviewed by a TIMES reporter after they had lunched. They spoke of the beauty of the scenery and the magnificent timber of British Columbia, expressing themselves as highly delighted with what had been seen. It was not to admire the scenery of the big forests that the delegation had visited Canada. They desire to personally acquaint themselves with the agricultural resources of the country. In their travels they had been pleasantly surprised. Land capable of growing big crops of hay had been seen. Soil, rich and arable, producing vegetables and cereals was lying in broad fields, and a climate and locality splendidly adapted to fruit culture had been disclosed. British Columbia was, to their minds, a land flowing with milk and honey, for not only were its fisheries now world famous, but its resources in an agricultural direction gave promise of even greater wealth. Fertile lands had been found by them here, and it was evident all that was needed was the proper men to cultivate those lands to make British Columbia one of the favored spots of the earth. They had noticed with pleasure that such lands as were under cultivation were well and intelligently looked after, and it only remained to direct the attention of the old world farmers to the advantages of this country to ensure a stream of immigration composed largely of agricultural classes to set this way. While all parts of the Dominion claimed each to be the best, but in spite of these claims, there was no doubt but what British Columbia was the section par excellence. Since their arrival in British Columbia they had been treated with marked hospitality, cordiality and courtesy, and the impressions received of the people had been as favorable as had those of the land.

This is considered the most important and influential deputation that has ever visited this country from England, and it is expected that their report on Canada's agricultural wealth and advantages will prove of great benefit.

After lunch at the Driard the entire party in charge of His Worship Mayor Grant, Col. Prior and Mr. Earle, M.P., drove around the city, paying His Honor the Lieut.-Governor a visit, thence proceeding to Beacon Hill park, the museum and the surrounding country as much as the time at their disposal would permit. The trip to Esquimalt had to be scored off the card owing to their late arrival, but Admiral Hotham had made every arrangement necessary for according them a fitting reception.

This evening they will be formally dined at the Driard; to-morrow they will take the drive to Saanich and will leave in the evening for New Westminster for a trip up the Fraser and neighboring territory.

The Dominion Government has commissioned Mr. Campbell to accompany the delegation, and as his knowledge of the country is very extensive and practical, his company is of considerable value in enabling the gentlemen of the party to see all the inducements Canada offers to intending settlers.

ONE OF THE EARLIEST.

The Late Thomas Gorrie One of the First Residents.

A. Phillips, Esq., of the Pioneer Soda Water Works, who was very intimate with the late Thos. Gorrie, whose death was reported in this journal last evening, says that the deceased went to Australia from Edinburgh in 1845, and went into the sheep raising business. From there he went to California in 1850, where Mr. Phillips met him. He opened out a little grocery store at the corner of Second and Stevenson streets, San Francisco, when that part of the city was quite out of town. Mr. Phillips was in the bakery business at the time, and he supplied the deceased with bread. From California Mr. Gorrie came to Victoria in '58, and opened a toy shop in a tent until a store was built for him, which he stayed in until the time of his death.

The deceased's chief pride was his flags, of which articles he had the best stock and largest assortment on the coast. When called upon to decorate a picnic ground, or even a city, he was always ready, and as a rule every nation on the face of the globe was represented. He was also splendid company and could sit for hours and spin yarns of his adventures, which were very interesting.

The funeral will take place at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon from his residence, 109 Fort street, and will be attended by members of the St. Andrew's and Caledonia Society.

YOU NEED YOUR EYES.

Therefore you Should Give Them the Best of Care.

All sensible people know the value of the eye.

Some do not know how to improve and preserve the sight to the best advantage.

Only a thoroughly educated and experienced optician can prescribe the best methods.

A science, the practice of fitting glasses as you do gloves, is not only a waste of money, but is a direct and serious damage to the eyes, the most precious gift of heaven.

We can buy new teeth, or artificial limbs, or we can have lost noses or cheeks restored by skillful surgeons, but we cannot replace lost sight.

Thousands of letters from eminent oculists and physicians and prominent American ladies and gentlemen attest the wonderful skill and success of Mr. F. D. Seward, the celebrated New York Optician.

Scores of ladies and gentlemen of Victoria are wearing fine glasses adapted by him and they are giving the highest satisfaction.

If you have any weakness or defect of vision, call upon Mr. Seward at once, at his new office, No. 3, over Cochrane & Munn's popular drug store, corner of Douglas and Yates Street, opposite the Clarence Hotel. Evening hour 7 to 8 o'clock.

You will never have so good an opportunity as now.—Adv.

STRONG CONDEMNATION

[illegible] a Foul Course.

As the TIMES was on the point of going to press when the horse poisoning case was closed yesterday, no more than the bare result could be given. Before proceedings were resumed, Mr. Mills, counsel for Renwick, objected to Mr. Robert Ward presiding at this case as he was a member of the Jockey club. Mr. Ward explained that he was not there as a member of the club, but [illegible] point having been noted, the case was proceeded with.

W. M. Dean was the only witness called. He deposed to being a drug clerk in the employ of John Teague, jr. Remembered, on Saturday the 11th inst., selling some aconite, seventy drops, in two vials containing, 35 drops in each. The purchaser was a smooth-faced young man. Thought Baldwin was the person. The aconite was asked for for a veterinary surgeon.

To Mr. Mills.—Aconite is a vegetable poison; the tincture is only deadly according to the quantity administered.

To Mr. Ward—Did not take a receipt from the prisoner; understood there was no law in this country requiring him so to do.

Baldwin to the witness—"Did I say that it was any certain veterinary I wanted it for?"

Witness—"No."

Baldwin — "Did I mention any names?"

Witness—"Not that I know of."

Baldwin — "I didn't mention any horse's name either, did I?"

Witness—"No you simply asked for the aconite for a veterinary surgeon."

This closed the case for the crown, after which, Mr. Mills reserving his defence, Mr. Irving reviewed the evidence for the prosecution.

His Honor said he had read and followed the evidence as closely as possible, and he certainly must confess that he had been waiting to find a link showing the connection between the two prisoners. The whole of the evidence rests upon conversations overheard. However the inquiry elicited one thing and that was that most disreputable practices are liable to be carried on in this city during the horse races, and although there can be very little doubt that foul play of some kind was contemplated, still, sitting there as a magistrate he did not think the evidence was sufficient to justify him in committing the prisoners for trial. He warned the prisoners not to expect to be able to carry on here those practices indulged in on the other side of the line. They are most disreputable, most disgraceful, and will be put down with the utmost rigor of the law. He discharged the prisoners.

SEAL SKINS SOUGHT FOR.

Their Value Still Rising in the Fur Markets of the World.

The fur trade of the West Coast has loomed up to magnificent proportions in the past few years, and its importance to-day bears a remarkable lesson, which cannot but gratify the citizens interested in the advancement and prosperity of this wealthy region of the Northwest. Only a few years ago the seal skin business was hardly a factor in local industry. The old settlers didn't take much stock in the world of fashion, and knew little and probably cared less about the wearing of furs. Fashion was out of the question. The old settlers would rather hear their buzz-saws singing the song of golden shekels than listen to Mdme. Nicolini's most entrancing rendition.

But times have changed. The old settler is in a very small minority to-day, and his children are in with the swim of Eastern customs and gilt-edge style. With the influx of people from the shores of the Atlantic and with the development of our myriad other resources, consequent of the liberal investment of capital—in fact, on the tide of prosperity—came the Nymph of Fashion. The Easterners knew all about the value and luxury of furs, and in the last year or two fur-wearing has become quite general in society. A reporter of the Seattle Telegraph has interviewed R. Petkovits, the furrier, on the subject of this great industry and gleaned many interesting facts.

"Furs are more in demand here than ever before," said Mr. Petkovits, as he examined a beautiful brown seal skin which was about to be converted into a winter garment. "Business has increased to such an extent this year that I am actually unable to do justice to the great demand." As to seal fur he observed that the prices were never so high. There is perhaps no better authority on these matters in the northwest than Mr. Petkovits, who recently purchased 2,415 skins from J. C. Nixon at $12.75 each, and who has them now on the way to London to be cured. Sealskin cloaks now sell at from $150 upward, the prices representing an advance of 25 per cent. on last year's figures.

"We shall receive the winter prices about the middle of November," said he. "Sealskins will, in all probability, advance, as the market is short 80,000 skins. Last year the Alaska Fur Seal company captured 100,000 seals, and that was the Government limit. This year their catch represents only 21,000 skins, and, at the same time, the demand is greater than it was before. One cause for the astonishing increase in the demand is that the Russian people have become votaries of this rich fashion, and last year the demand throughout the empire of the Czar ex[illegible] of a whole decade before."

It should be stated here as a matter of information, that, with a single exception, the seal catch of the world is handled by one British firm—C. M. Lampson & Co., of London. Their raw fur brokerage is a mammoth business, and millions of capital are invested in it. They have absolutely no rivals, as the Hudson Bay Company, which is the corporation referred to as handling its own raw skins, has its own market and does an independent business with its own catch.

It was to the firm of Lampson & Co. that Mr. Petkovits shipped his raw skins, the majority of which will be sold in London, and the remainder cured and returned for the local trade.

As to the process of curing and dyeing, the furrier remarked that many establishments existed for those purposes in England and America. The dyeing feature was the most important, as by the greater number of systems the skins are spotted, and then foisted on the market as genuine goods. Martin, the sealskin dyer of London, is reputed the [illegible] sea, quite undiscoverable. His work is a marvel of purity and fineness of color, and skins from his establishment command the highest valuation. One reason why sealskins are not generally cured in America is that the work is done quicker here by reason of higher wages being paid for such work. The skins are not rightly nor perfectly cured, as it takes a good measure of time to effect the desired changes. Mr. Petkovits has [illegible] performed by Mr. [illegible]

"The seal is the only fur which continues to appreciate in value," concluded Mr. Petkovits; "all other fur goods have materially declined in price."

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT.

Captain Dixon Pays the Court $250 and Costs for Failing to Appear.

About 10 o'clock last evening, Capt. Dixon of the steamer North Pacific appeared in chamber before the Chief Justice to answer to the charge of contempt of court preferred against him. He was defended by the Attorney-General and Mr. H. D. Helmcken, while Mr. Taylor appeared for the Chinamen.

Mr. Taylor explained to the court that the present stage in the action was an adjourned hearing of Capt. Dixon's reasons why he should not be committed for contempt in refusing to obey the writ issued; the remand had been taken to enable him to produce the Chinamen, and thus punge himself of at least part of the contempt. He was anxious to learn if the Chinamen were now here.

The Attorney-General replied that his client had done all in his power to secure a return of the Chinamen in compliance with the order of the court, but a superior power than his, the command of the Secretary of State, had intervened, and the Chinamen have been taken from McNeil's Island to San Francisco, thence to be returned to China by the first outgoing steamer. Capt. Dixon was prepared to receive the sentence of the court for the contempt committed, but urged that his subsequent conduct has been an earnest endeavor to comply with the mandate of the court.

The Chief Justice, before proceeding to the case, took occasion to refer to an article published in a local paper in regard to the present action, which he said contained not one word of truth—

The Attorney-General — Not one word, your lordship!

The Chief Justice, continuing—This paper said there were 21 Chinamen, whereas there were only 18, and it made a series of other statements which did not appear upon the affidavits before the court. This action on the part of the newspaper in question was really a contempt of court; were a jury deciding the case it might easily prejudice them. He, of course, could not be prejudiced. He proceeded at considerable length to condemn the manner in which newspapers of this province were conducted, and urged that more care should be taken in the selection of the matter appearing in them. Passing to Capt. Dixon's case he said that it was a flagrant contempt; it amounted practically to the suspension of the habeas corpus, the great safeguard of liberty, and he considered the case parallel to the famous one of Capt. Woodward, which he would take for a precedent in giving judgment, which was that Capt. Dixon pay a fine of £50 with costs.

Mr. Taylor said that he had reason to believe that Captain Dixon had been misinformed and that the Chinamen were still at McNeil's Island. He asked for a further adjournment of one week in order that by United States legal process, Capt. Dixon might be enabled to produce the Chinamen here, as required in the first instance. His Lordship, however, could see no reason for the delay suggested, and the judgment stood as announced.

Poultry and Pet Show.

There was a well attended meeting of the B. C. Poultry and Pet Association held at the office of Dalby, Ballantyne & Clayton last evening. Committees were formed to arrange prize lists and select a suitable building for the bench show, to be held on the 18th, 19th and 20th of December.

A Monotonous Day.

A very monotonist list of cases came up in the police court this morning, there being two drunks and a slwash for having whiskey in his possession, all of whom pleaded guilty, and the Chinese perjury case, which was remanded for another week. The two drunks were fined $5 and the Indian $25 for having whiskey in his possession. Robt. Lewis arrested yesterday for stealing $106 from the mate of the Rainbow, will not come up until Monday

They Didn't Wait.

Baldwin and Renwick, who escaped so narrowly in the horse "doping" case, have left Victoria behind them. Talk was of instituting a fresh suit, but those most directly interested in the horses were not in British territory, and as the proceedings showed, the evidence against the prisoners was largely hearsay. It was to avoid more damaging evidence being brought up in a fresh suit that the acquitted prisoners made tracks for other places.

What Did She Do With Them?

Mrs. McKenzie, of Herald street, is troubled very much about her little girl, aged 12 years. The child seems to have a longing for every small article in her parents' house, and whenever she gets a chance, takes out an armful of little articles. Among the last batch that she took was a $20 bill, and as the things could not be found the parents reported the case to the police. The child claims that she gave them to a well-known grocer, but he denies it, and the police believe him and think that the child has given the things to Indians. The child was missing this morning and had taken her little sisters with her, but they will very likely turn up when hungry.

Against a Chicken Rancher.

The sanitary officer has at last got an action against the Chinamen who keeps chicken ranches inside the city limits. Some of the Mongolians have disposed of their stock in trade and the dirt with it, but a couple refused to do so and will have to answer for their disobedience in the police court on Monday morning.

A Baron's Scheme.

Some days ago a Russian baron came to Port Townsend, hard up but full of schemes. He was the alleged representative of a syndicate worth millions which was to start a steel works at Port Townsend. The baron wanted a little bonus of $4000 in cash, part of which he required at once, but his scheme did not work successfully, and the chances are the baron will build his steel works somewhere else.

False Claims.

The lecture given at Harmony Hall last evening by Mr. Remsberg was well attended. The subject chosen by the speaker was "False Claims." He held that the claims of the churches that the present state of civilization and advancement of the world were due to the church, was false, and the speaker had many telling arguments to strengthen his assertion. The lecturer was attentively listened to by those present.

To Meet at Vancouver.

The adjourned meeting of the University convocation is convened to assemble at Vancouver on Wednesday next at 2 p.m. The committees on the Island and Mainland have been in active correspondence and have made several amendments to the report which they will submit to the convocation when assembled as a whole. It is expected that this will be the most important meeting of the series already held.

Esquimalt Church Bazaar.

A very successful bazaar was opened at Esquimalt this afternoon; the proceeds to be devoted to the church rectory fund. There was a large assortment of fancy work to select from, a portion of which will find its way to town this evening, inasmuch as the street car company granted a free trip to those going down to the bazaar. Music was furnished for the occasion by the popular institution, the band of H.M.S. Warspite.

Port Townsend Fire Department.

An arrangement has been come to at Port Townsend between the members of the fire department and the city council. The men of the department in future will receive pay for their services at the rate of $2.50 for first hour's work at fires, and $1 for subsequent hours. For attending fire practice twice a month each member will be paid 50 cents each meeting and for false alarms 50 cents.

To-night's Lecture.

At the Philharmonic Hall to-night Prof. Muller will give his popular lecture "Around the World in Two Hours," illustrated by lime light effects. The views will be projected by a powerful stereopticon on to a large screen. The latest mechanical effects are introduced, and the dissolving scenes are said to be beautiful and realistic beyond compare, one especially is Mount Vesuvius in eruption. And it alone is well worth the admission fee. The lecture is instructive, and to the young is a practical lesson in geography better far than those taught by books.

Is It They?

A special dispatch from Tacoma to the Seattle P.I. says: Marshall Parker, of Fairhaven, this evening identified Charles Lawson, at the city prison, as the man who recently shot officer Bruhn, of Fairhaven, while he was being conducted to the station-house on a charge of larceny. Lawson is W. G. Lawson, of Victoria. Parker started with him for Fairhaven to-night.

Another item in the Telegraph says: One F. Anderson, wanted at Port Blakeley for stealing a silver watch, was arrested yesterday on Railroad avenue by officer George Cave. No watch was found on Anderson when searched at police headquarters, although the officer feels certain he is the man wanted. Anderson will be taken back to-day.

These two appearing at once lead the people here to place the cause of the items upon Frank Anderson and Chas. Lawson, the two men arrested here a few months ago on suspicion of robbing the Nickel-Plate saloon.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW,

SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 19th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the DRAGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

AT THE THEATRE.

Unusual Attractions During the Coming Week at the Victoria.

There can be no fault found with the class of entertainments now being provided by the new management of the Victoria Theatre, and it is to be hoped that this kind of attraction will hold the board during the entire season.

Since the Rev. McLeod's sermon on "The Adulterous Woman," there has been considerable talk about the prominent seats usually taken by the demimonde at the theatre. Whether this wretched state of affairs can be remedied by the management, is a question that the managment can best answer. That it detracts much from the pleasure of many who have paid for choice seats, to be surrounded by these people there can be no doubt, and if a change could be made it would undoubtedly be appreciated.

The first two nights of next week will be taken up by Clara Morris, one the greatest, if not the greatest emotional actress on the stage to-day. Monday night Camille, Tuesday Renee de Moray.

The Camille of Miss Morris is that which is reflected from the pages of Dumas. She divests the character, in great part, of its less grateful quality. She purifies and poetizes. She ennobles, and that without losing sight of the hard reality. After witnessing her performances we can readily understand how it was that she worked so great a change in the popular regard of the drama.

"The Stowaway," the last New York success, will be produced next Wednesday and Thursday nights. "The Stowaway" is a melodrama of intense absorbing interest that has been constantly played in England for the past five years. It achieved a greater triumph in England than did the "Nights o' London," "Silver King," "The World," and other plays of its class. It is replete with stirring situations, startling climaxes and is pervaded with a vivid spirit of comedy.

PERSONAL.

Movements of Well Known People in Various Directions.

R. S. Cawston of Penticton, is in town.

Miss Alexander, of Quamichan, is registered at the Oriental.

C. Todd, superintendent of Indians, of Metlakathla, is at the Driard.

Gen. D. F. Newall, of Ryde, Isle of Wight, is registered at the Driard.

C. M. Whitney, who has been the electrician of the street railway company, went east this morning to take charge of a plant at Albany, N. Y., at a salary of $2,500 per year.

M. J. Davis, local manager for Jos. Ullman's establishment, leaves to-morrow for New York. During his absence, which will extend over a couple of months, he will visit his home in St. Louis.

Note the Hours.

For the accommodation of the public, we are open a few hours every Sunday, as follows:

9:30 to 10 a. m.
2 to 5 p. m.
8:30 to 10 p. m.

During the week our patrons will find an attentive clerk ready to wait upon them at any hour, day or night. Cochrane & Munn, druggists and chemists, Yates and Douglas streets.

Is He Lost?

It is rumored that Mr. Desbourne line man in charge of the telegraph between Bonilla Point and Pachena Harbor, is missing. Indian officer Lewis states that when he was up in that vicinity the man had been missing for several days, and now his absence has extended over a week. It seems he went on one of his usual inspection trips up the line, a distance of about 28 miles, but not intending to go the whole distance, he took only a very small supply of provisions. He has been absent now since Friday week, and his people are becoming very anxious. A search party will start out to look for him, if such a step has not already been taken.

Nanaimo Notes.

A coroner's jury empaneled to inquire into the cause of the death of Mrs. J. L. Cawthorne, brought in a verdict of suicide while in a fit of insanity.

It is reported that instead of waiting for the bore to be put down to the coal at Protection Island, the management of the New Vancouver Coal Company will at once begin the preliminary work for sinking the shaft.

A miner who was engaged in timbering the new Northfield shaft, which is in course of sinking, suddenly overbalanced the plank on which he was standing, and fell about forty feet to the bottom. There was about four feet of water in the shaft. Beyond a few bruises and a severe shaking up, he was uninjured.

Too Prominent a Position.

The new city hall addition has greatly improved the appearance of the building, which is now a very fine one, a credit to the city, and convenient to all who have business there. One great improvement, however, remains to be made, and that is to remove from the front of the Douglas street entrance, the city weighing machine. This is hardly the place for a public hay scales, and it would be more in accordance with the eternal fitness of things to have them in the "backyard." If the scales were placed on Cormorant street they would still be under the eye of the public weigher, and would not, as they do now, obstruct the front door of the city's place of business. Victoria is becoming a little to metropolitan to permit of a hay scales being left in so public a place, and no doubt the city fathers, whose pride in the appearance of the hall is well known, will take steps to have the scales removed to some less prominent position.

Too Much Wind.

H.M.S. Amphion, which was to have sailed this morning for Honolulu, made a start, but was ordered to anchor again by Admiral Hotham. She will, in all probability sail to-morrow or Monday.

Vegetable Curiosity.

It is strange the forms that vegetables occasionally assume, potatoes especially sometimes growing in most grotesque shapes. A sweet potato is in the possession of J. Levy which is a decided curiosity. It has grown into the shape of a duck. The head, bill, neck, body and all is almost perfect in shape, the tuber having the appearance of a duck sitting on the water.

Street Committee Matters.

At a meeting of the street committee yesterday an arrangement was made to meet the directors of the street car company on Monday evening, when the Superior street gravel question will be discussed and probably decided. At the same meeting it was decided to lay new sidewalks on John street, Work Estate, St. Louis street, Yates street ward and on the east side of Menzies street, James Bay ward.

Not Any Better.

Officer Lewis returned on the steamer Standard at 5.30 last evening, from Bonilla Point, where he had been to see the Indian who was shot by Jailer Allan. He reports the man as being still very low, and unable to leave his bed, although he might have brought him up if the weather had not been so boisterous. The weather, he says, is something terrible outside, and the little steamer was pitched around pretty lively.

New Set of Wheels.

The new set of wheels for the John Grant steam fire engine will be put on next week by Meston, the carriage builder. The wheels will be of superior strength, and will be able to stand the severe strains they are sometimes subjected to when carrying the heavy engine through the streets. Messrs. Merryweather & Co., of London, will pay three-fourths of the cost of this new set of wheels, as the original ones were unsatisfactory.

In Winter Quarters.

The monkeys which have delighted the children at the park this summer have been taken into winter quarters at the rice mill. By the kindness of Mr. T. B. Hall the little animals have been given a cage in one corner of the engine room of the mills, and the engineer, Mr. Townsley, will look well after the comfort of the agile caricatures of man. The quarters are cosy and warm, and the rigors of winter will not be felt by the children's pets.

An Echo of the Storm.

During the rough weather round the coast Wednesday last, a party of twelve Indians nearly lost their lives just past Sooke. The water was terribly rough, and as the little vessel rolled and pitched it was only a matter of time before she would be upset or swamped. Her heavy freight did not add to her buoyancy, on the contrary. Eventually one tremendous wave burst over her and swamped the entire institution, canoe, seven men and five klootchmen. Fortunately they were close in shore and were soon high, though not dry, on the beach. The contents of the canoe, valued at about $600, were altogether lost.
